

1 JOHN C. EASTMAN, No. 193726
ANTHONY T. CASO, No. 088561
2 Center for Constitutional Jurisprudence
c/o Chapman Univ. Fowler Sch. of Law
3 One University Drive
Orange, CA 92806
4 Telephone: (916) 601-1916
Fax: (916) 307-5164
5 E-Mail: tom@caso-law.com

6 CHARLES H. BELL, JR., No. 060553
BELL, McANDREWS & HILTACHK, LLP
7 455 Capitol Mall, Suite 600
Sacramento, CA 95814
8 Telephone: (916) 442-7757
Fax: (916) 442-7759
9 E-mail: cbell@bmhlaw.com

10 ALLEN DICKERSON, Pro hac vice (pending)
CENTER FOR COMPETITIVE POLITICS
11 124 S. West Street, Suite 201
Alexandria, VA 22314
12 Telephone: (703) 894-6800
Fax: (703) 894-6811
13 E-mail: adickerson@campaignfreedom.org

14 Attorneys for Petitioners Howard Jarvis
Taxpayers Association and Quentin Kopp
15

16 SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA
COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO
17

18 HOWARD JARVIS TAXPAYERS )
ASSOCIATION, a California nonprofit public )
19 benefit corporation, and QUENTIN L. KOPP, )
a California Taxpayer, )
20 Petitioners and Plaintiffs, )

21 v. )

22 EDMUND G. BROWN, JR., Governor of the ) State of California, and FAIR POLITICAL ) 23 PRACTICES COMMISSION, an agency of ) the State of California, )
24 Respondents and Defendants. )
25

Case No.: 34-2016-80002512-CU-WM-GDS

PETITIONER'S REPLY
MEMORANDUM OF POINTS AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ISSUANCE OF PEREMPTORY WRIT OF MANDATE

Date: August 4, 2017

Time: 10:00 am

Dept: 29

Judge: The Honorable Timothy M. Frawley

Action Filed: December 12, 2016

Trial Date: Not Set.

TABLE OF CONTENTS

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES ..... ii

INTRODUCTION ..... 1

ARGUMENT ..... 2

    I. The People Revoked the Power of the Legislature to Alter the Ban on Public Financing enacted by Proposition 73..... 2

        A. The Political Reform Act of 1974 did not alter the constitutional rules for legislative amendment of statutory initiatives..... 3

        B. Respondents’ argument violates fundamental canons of statutory construction. .... 4

        C. Section 85202 does not empower the Legislature to repeal the ban on public financing of political campaigns. .... 6

    II. Propositions 73 and 34 Made the Prohibition on Public Financing of Political Campaigns a Purpose of Title 9 of the Government Code as Amended. .... 7

        A. The Legislature is not entitled to deference on the purposes of Title 9 as amended. .... 8

        B. The prohibition on public financing of political campaigns is one of the purposes of Title 9 of the Government Code. .... 10

        C. Legislation that conflicts with Government Code § 85300, a voter-enacted statute, cannot further the purpose of Title 9, which includes section 85300. .... 12

        D. Respondents’ claim that public financing of election campaigns will promote better, more responsive, elected officials is both irrelevant and inaccurate. .... 14

CONCLUSION..... 18

DECLARATION OF SERVICE ..... 19

TABLE OF AUTHORITIES

Cases

Amwest Surety Insurance Company v. Wilson
 (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243 ..... 9, 10, 13, 15

Associated Home Builders etc., Inc. v. City of Livermore
 (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 582 ..... 8

Brosnahan v. Brown
 (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236 ..... 8

C and C Const. v. Sacramento Mun. Util. Dist.
 (2004) 122 Cal. App. 4th 284 ..... 3

California Common Cause v. Fair Pol. Pract. Com’n
 (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 647 ..... 9, 13

Center for Public Interest Law v. Fair Pol. Pract. Comm’n
 (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1476 ..... 10, 11

DeVita v. County of Napa
 (1995) 9 Cal.4th 763 ..... 8, 10, 13

DJB Holding Corp. v. CIR,
 803 F.3d 1014 (9th Cir. 2015) ..... 2

Foundation for Taxpayer and Consumer Rights v. Garamendi
 (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1354 ..... 13, 14

Gardner v. Schwarzenegger
 (2009) 178 Cal. App. 1366 ..... 13, 15

Hodges v. Superior Court
 (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 109 ..... 9

Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Ass’n v. Bowen
 (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 110 ..... 13

Imperial Merch. Servs., Inc. v. Hunt
 (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 381 ..... 4

Johnson v. Bradley
 (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 389 ..... 7

Legislature v. Eu
 (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492 ..... 3, 11

Leshar Commun., Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek
 (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531 ..... 5, 7, 10

1 Montana Right to Live Ass’n v. Eddleman,
343 F.3d 1085 (9th Cir. 2003) ..... 2

2

3 People v. Johnson
(2015) 61 Cal. 4th 674 ..... 11

4 People v. Kelly
(2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1008 ..... 3, 8

5

6 People v. Weidert
(1985) 39 Cal.3d 836 ..... 5

7 Prof’l Engineers in California Gov’t v. Kempton
(2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1016 ..... 5

8

9 Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush
(1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473 ..... 10

10 Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Quackenbush
(1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473 ..... 13

11

12 Robert L. v. Superior Court
(2003) 30 Cal. 4th 894 ..... 11

13 San Francisco Taxpayers Assn. v. Bd. of Supervisors
(1992); 2 Cal. 4th 571 ..... 11

14

15 Shoemaker v. Myers
(1990) 52 Cal.3d 1 ..... 4

16 Taxpayers to Limit Campaign Spending v. Fair Pol. Practices Com.
(1990) 51 Cal.3d 744 ..... 12

17

18 Statutes

19 Gov’t Code § 85100..... 12

20 Government Code § 82012 ..... 3, 5, 7

21 Government Code § 85103 ..... passim

22 Government Code § 85300 ..... passim

23 Other Authorities

24 1A Sutherland Statutory Construction § 27:1 (7th ed.) ..... 7

25 Albanese, Joe, Do Taxpayer-Funded Campaigns Increase Political Competitiveness? CENTER
FOR COMPETITIVE POLITICS, June 2017. (July 12, 2017) available at 26 http://www.campaignfreedom.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/06/2017-06-05\_Issue-Analysis-10\_Do-Taxpayer-Funded-Campaigns-Increase-Political-Competitiveness.pdf. ..... 16

27

1 Campaign Finance Institute. Citizen Funding for Elections. (July 10, 2017) available at 2 http://www.cfinst.org/press/PReleases/15-11-19/CFI\_Report\_Citizen\_Funding\_for\_
3 Elections.aspx. ..... 16, 17

4 Cavari, Amnon, & Mayer, Kenneth R.. Why Didn't Public Funding Generate More
5 Competition in State Legislative Elections? (April 18, 2011), in American Politics
6 Workshop, University of Wisconsin. April, 2011. .... 15, 17

7 Center for Governmental Studies, 2003. Investing in Democracy: Creating Public
8 Financing of Elections in Your Community, at page 15. (July 13, 2017) available at 9 <http://www.policyarchive.org/handle/10207/231> ..... 15

10 Government Accountability Office. Campaign Finance Reform: Experiences of Two
11 States That Offered Full Public Funding for Political Candidates. (July 12, 2017), 12 accessible at, <http://www.gao.gov/assets/310/305079.pdf>. .... 15

13 Malhotra, Neil. The Impact of Public Financing on Electoral Competition. Vol. 8, 14 No.3 State Politics and Policy Quarterly 263 (Fall, 2008) ..... 16, 17

15 Mayer, Kenneth R.. Public Election Funding: An Assessment of What We Would Like to Know.
16 Vol 11. No. 3 The Forum: A Journal of Applied Research in Contemporary Politics. 365
17 (October, 2013) ..... 16

18 National Institute on Money in State Politics, 2013 and 2014: Monetary Competitiveness in State
19 Legislative Races. (July 13, 2017) available at https://www.followthemoney.org/research/
20 institute-reports/2013-and-2014-monetary-competitiveness-in-state-legislative-races/..... 16

21 Stepleton, J.T.. The Rise and Fall of Public Funding in Arizona. The National Institute on 22 Money in State Politics. (July 10, 2017) available at https://www.followthemoney.org/research
23 /blog/the-rise-and-fall-of-public-funding-in-arizona/. .... 17

Constitutional Provisions

17 Cal. Const. art. I, § 1 ..... 3

18 Cal. Const. art. II, § 8..... 3

19 Cal. Const. art. II, § 10..... 3

20 Cal. Const. art. IV, § 1 ..... 3

21

22

23

24

25

26

27

1 INTRODUCTION

2 Although the people in enacting Proposition 73 initially granted limited power to the 3 Legislature to amend the terms of the initiative (but not to enact laws conflicting with it), that authority
4 was revoked by two later carefully drafted initiatives. The first one, Proposition 208 put forward by 5 amici, carefully left the ban on taxpayer financing of campaigns for elective office in place, but 6 repealed the statute added by Proposition 73 that allowed legislative amendment. Proposition 34, put
7 forward by the California Legislature, similarly was careful to maintain Government Code § 85300's
8 ban on public financing of political campaigns and similarly repealed the authority of the Legislature
9 to amend that section. The Constitution is clear. The Legislature, on its own, has no authority to 10 amend voter-enacted statutes without express authority from the voters. The attempted amendment of 11 Section 85300 to authorize that which the voters prohibited is void as an act beyond the powers of the 12 Legislature.

13 Even if there were some hidden authority for legislative amendments of the voter-enacted
14 provisions of Proposition 73, Senate Bill No. 1107 must fall because its amendments do not “further 15 the purposes” of Title 9 of the Government Code as amended by Proposition 73 and Proposition 34.
16 Respondents argue that the Legislature is free to define the purposes of Proposition 73, and implies
17 that this Court must defer to that interpretation. Respondents then build on this erroneous foundation
18 by arguing that a statutory initiative enacted in 1974 altered the meaning of the California Constitution,
19 that provisions of a statutory initiative were mere surplusage, that voters and proponents of initiatives
20 should be presumed ignorant of the law, and that the purpose of the measure can only be determined
21 if that initiative contains a “purposes” section and thus the ballot pamphlet is irrelevant. This
22 superstructure of flawed argument is then crowned with the claim that Proposition 73’s ban on public
23 financing is at once an inseparable part of the Political Reform Act, but at the same time contrary to 24 the purposes of the Act.<sup>1</sup> These arguments are contrary to settled.

25 _____
26 <sup>1</sup> Amici argue that Senate Bill No. 1107 merely authorizes “citizen” funding of political campaigns.
27 That, of course, is false. Political campaigns are already funded by citizens through voluntary 28 contributions. Senate Bill No. 1107 authorizes the use of public monies for political campaigns for
Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association v. Brown, No 34-20160800002512; Petitioners’ Reply

1 The people, in enacting Proposition 73, evinced a clear purpose to prohibit public financing of 2 political campaigns. That purpose became embedded in Title 9 of the Government Code when
3 Proposition 73 was enacted.<sup>2</sup> Proposition 34, an initiative put forward by the Legislature, confirmed
4 that purpose both in its title and its ballot arguments. An amendment reversing the ban on public
5 financing of campaigns can in no way further the purposes of Title 9, as amended by the voters.

6 ARGUMENT

7 I. The People Revoked the Power of the Legislature to Alter the Ban on Public Financing 8 enacted by Proposition 73.

9 As originally enacted, Proposition 73 included a mechanism to allow legislative amendment
10 of its provisions. Government Code § 85103 stipulated that the Legislature could amend the voter-
11 enacted statutes added by Proposition 73 so long as those amendments furthered the purposes of Title
12 9 as amended by Proposition 73. With the addition of Government Code § 85300, these purposes now
13 include a ban on public financing of political campaigns for elective office. That purpose was again
14 confirmed in Proposition 34. See Part II.B., infra. That authority was later revoked by Proposition
15 208 of 1996 and again by Proposition 34 of 2000.

16 Respondents argue that the authority granted in the original Political Reform Act of 1974 for 17 limited legislative amendments applies not only to that 1974 initiative, but also to any future voter-
18 enacted measure that amends the Political Reform Act of 1974. No authority is cited for such an 19 astounding proposition. The repeal of the legislative authority to amend the provisions of Proposition
20

21
22 elective office. This is something that the voters have rejected. Petitioners will not respond to amici's
23 claim that the Governor that signed, and the Legislature that enacted Senate Bill No. 1107 owe their 24 offices to endemic "corruption." Amici Curiae Brief in Support of Respondents and in Opposition to 25 Petition for Peremptory Writ of Mandate at 9.

26 <sup>2</sup> Respondents point out that many of the provisions of Proposition 73 were enjoined by the Ninth
27 Circuit. They fail to note, however, that that decision was later recognized as legally erroneous. *DJB
28 Holding Corp. v. CIR*, 803 F.3d 1014, 1022 (9th Cir. 2015); Montana Right to Live Ass'n v. Eddleman, 343 F.3d 1085, 1091 n.2 (9th Cir. 2003). Since that time, the affected portions of Proposition 73 have been repealed and replaced by Proposition 34. Proposition 34 §16. As noted below, Proposition 34 confirmed the purpose of Proposition 73 to reform campaign financing without taxpayer financing for political campaigns for elective office.

1 73 is clear in both Proposition 208 and Proposition 34, and the voters are presumed to know the
2 legislative scheme they are amending in a statutory initiative. Further, each part of a statutory scheme
3 is presumed to have meaning. Respondents’ unique interpretation compels the conclusion that 4 provisions in Proposition 73 and Proposition 208 were mere surplusage.

5 Propositions 208 and 34 clearly repealed the authority granted in Proposition 73 to amend its
6 provisions. Nothing in Propositions 208 and 34 granted new authority to amend the ban on taxpayer
7 financing of campaigns for elective office in section 85300.

8 A. The Political Reform Act of 1974 did not alter the constitutional rules for legislative 9 amendment of statutory initiatives

10 The people reserved a portion of the legislative power to themselves, exercised through the 11 initiative. Cal. Const. art. I, § 1; art. IV, § 1; art. II, § 8; Legislature v. Eu (1991) 54 Cal. 3d 492, 500.
12 This reservation of power would be useless if the Legislature were free to amend initiative statutes at 13 will. Thus, the Constitution expressly limits the power of legislative amendment of initiative statutes.
14 Unless the initiative statute itself provides differently, legislative amendments are not effective unless 15 approved by the people. Cal. Const. art II, sec 10; People v. Kelly (2010) 47 Cal. 4th 1008, 1025-26.
16 Proposition 9 from 1974 (the Political Reform Act) did not alter this constitutional rule. Proposition
17 9 was a statutory initiative. It had no power to amend the Constitution.

18 Proposition 9 added Government Code § 82012 to permit legislative amendment of the 19 Political Reform Act if the amendment was enacted by two-thirds majority vote and it furthered the 20 purpose of “this title” – Title 9 of the Government Code. That was the title added to the Government
21 Code as the Political Reform Act of 1974. Nothing in Proposition 9 purported to affect future statutory 22 initiatives – even if the provisions of the initiative were placed in Title 9 of the Government Code.

23 Amendment of statutory initiatives is governed by the Constitution. It is axiomatic that a 24 statute cannot amend the Constitution. See C and C Const. v. Sacramento Mun. Util. Dist. (2004) 122
25 Cal. App. 4th 284, 302. Thus, Proposition 9 of 1974 did not alter the command of California
26 Constitution, article II, § 10. The Legislature has no power to amend a statute enacted by initiative
27

1 without submitting that amendment to a vote of the people unless the initiative grants that power to
2 the Legislature.

3 The authority for legislative amendment of Section 85300 was repealed by Propositions 208
4 and 34. The general rule applicable to the Legislature's power to amend a voter-enacted statute is 5 found in California Constitution article II, § 10, not in Government Code § 81012. The statutory 6 authority for legislative amendment of an initiative enacted 14 years before Proposition 73 cannot 7 grant the Legislature a power withheld by the Constitution.

8 B. Respondents' argument violates fundamental canons of statutory construction.

9 Respondents' argument requires the court to ignore the voter-enacted repeal of legislative
10 authority to amend section 85300. The argument boils down to the claim that the original authorization
11 for legislative amendment in Proposition 73 was mere surplusage and/or the voters who enacted
12 Propositions 208 and 34 and the proponents who drafted those measures did not know what they were 13 doing when they repealed section 85103. Both arguments violate fundamental canons of statutory 14 construction.

15 First, each word in a statute must be interpreted to give it some operative effect. Imperial 16 Merch. Servs., Inc. v. Hunt (2009) 47 Cal. 4th 381, 390. The court may not construe a statute in a way
17 to make its provisions superfluous. Id.; Shoemaker v. Myers (1990) 52 Cal.3d 1, 22. Respondents'
18 argument that every subsequently voter enacted statute included in Title 9 is impressed by the 19 authorization of legislative amendment in the 1974 initiative first renders provisions of the 20 Constitution superfluous and then renders the provisions of initiative measures dictating amendment
21 procedure superfluous.

22 Article II, § 10 of the Constitution provides that the Legislature has no power to amend an
23 initiative statute unless the people grant that power in the initiative. Respondents' argument reverses
24 this default rule – at least for amendments that are placed in Title 9 of the Government Code. Now 25 the presumption is that the initiative statute is subject to legislative amendment simply because the 26 1974 initiative allowed limited legislative amendments. As noted above, however, the initiative statute
27 did not, and could not, amend the Constitution.

1 Respondents argument also renders superfluous the original authorization for legislative
2 amendment of the provisions of Proposition 73 and the carefully crafted legislative amendment
3 authority in Proposition 208. Proposition 73, as enacted, added Government Code § 85103. That
4 section authorized limited legislative amendment of the provisions of Proposition 73 if the Legislature
5 followed the procedure in section 82012. Section 85103 was later repealed by Proposition 208 and 6 again by Proposition 34. However, under respondents’ argument, section 85103 never had any 7 operative effect because the provisions of Proposition 73 were added to Title 9, and the 1974 initiative
8 made all future voter-enacted amendments to Title 9 subject to legislative amendment.

9 The argument also renders superfluous the specific authorization for legislative amendment
10 included in Proposition 208. Section 45 of Proposition 208 purported to allow the limited authority
11 for legislative amendment contained in Section 81012 apply to some, but not all the provisions of the 12 initiative. The ballot argument urged support because the measure was “carefully written.” Yet
13 respondents’ argument is that this careful draftsmanship was for naught – at least as to the provisions
14 regarding authority for legislative amendment. According to respondent, if the statutes enacted by the 15 initiative amend Title 9 of the Government Code, then section 81012 applies regardless of what the 16 initiative provides. Respondents offer no support for this argument that departs so radically from 17 fundamental canons of statutory interpretation.

18 Respondents also seem to argue that the voters did not know what they were doing when they 19 voted for Propositions 208 and 34. Did the voters know that they were repealing the limited legislative 20 authority for amendment of Proposition 73 when they approved Propositions 208 and 34? This Court
21 must presume that they did. Prof'l Engineers in California Gov't v. Kempton (2007) 40 Cal. 4th 1016,
22 1047-48; People v. Weidert (1985) 39 Cal.3d 836, 844. The Court’s task is to implement voter intent.
23 Where there is no ambiguity about the repeal of the limited legislative authority to amend section
24 85300, the court must “presume that the voters intend the meaning apparent on the face of an initiative
25 measure.” Leshar Commun., Inc. v. City of Walnut Creek (1990) 52 Cal. 3d 531, 543.

26 Like Proposition 208, Proposition 34 includes a clear repeal of section 85103. Unlike 27 Proposition 208, however, Proposition 34 does not include permission for legislative amendments.

1 The measure does refer to section 81012, but only for the requirement that Proposition 34 must be
2 approved by the voters. Like Proposition 208, the arguments in favor of the measure tell voters that it
3 was carefully written.

4 When they approved Proposition 34, the voters repealed section 85103 – the Legislature’s only
5 authority to amend section 85300. The voters are presumed to have read and understood all of this –
6 especially in light of the claims in both measures that they were carefully written. The Legislature has 7 no authority to amend section 85300 without voter approval.

8 C. Section 85202 does not empower the Legislature to repeal the ban on public
9 financing of political campaigns.

10 Finally, respondents argue that both Propositions 208 and 34 “both contained express 11 authorization for the Legislature to amend Title 9.” This claim is demonstrable false.

12 First, respondents claim that section 85202 added by Proposition 208 is an “express” grant of 13 authority to the Legislature to amend section 85300. Section 85202 as added to the Government Code
14 by Proposition 208 provided: “Unless specifically superseded by this act, the definitions and 15 provisions of this title shall govern the interpretation of this law.” Respondents argue that this statute 16 regarding interpretation somehow imports the operative provisions of section 81012 into all the 17 provisions of Proposition 208 and indeed the remaining provisions of Proposition 73. This 18 construction expressly conflicts with section 45 of Proposition 208, which includes a specific and 19 limited incorporation of section 81012’s limited authorization for legislative amendment. That limited 20 authorization for legislative amendment only applied to the provisions of “this act,” that is “the 21 California Political Reform Act of 1996” or Proposition 208.

22 The interpretation also conflicts with Section 50 of Proposition 208 which also incorporates 23 the nonconflicting portions of the then existing Political Reform Act, as amended to “apply to the 24 provisions of this chapter,” again referring only to the provisions of Proposition 208. Neither section
25 45 nor 50 apply to Government Code § 85300.

26 Section 85202, added by Proposition 34, is no more helpful to respondents’ case. As added by 27 Proposition 34, section 85202 reads: “Unless specifically superseded by the act that adds this section,

1 the definitions and provisions of this title shall govern the interpretation of this chapter.” As was the
2 case with Proposition 208, this section only talks about interpretation. Sections such as this are meant
3 to resolve doubts about meaning or clarify ambiguous terms. 1A Sutherland Statutory Construction §
4 27:1 (7th ed.). For this section to apply at all to this case, respondents must identify some ambiguous
5 term or unclear language regarding the Legislature’s power to amend section 85300. Respondents
6 have not done so.

7 Nothing in section 85300 creates an ambiguity. The only authority enacted by voters
8 authorizing amendment of that section was repealed by voters in later initiatives. The Constitution
9 clearly provides that unless the voters have granted authority to the Legislature, the Legislature has no
10 power to amend a voter-enacted initiative without voter approval. The repeal of section 85103 and 11 the operation of the California Constitution are clear. As the Supreme Court noted in Leshner “[a]bsent 12 ambiguity, we presume that the voters intend the meaning apparent on the face of an initiative measure.
13 Leshner, 52 Cal. 3d at 543.

14 II. Propositions 73 and 34 Made the Prohibition on Public Financing of Political 15 Campaigns a Purpose of Title 9 of the Government Code as Amended.

16 Respondents argue that the ban on public funding of campaign financing, enacted by 17 Proposition 73, is subject to amendment under Government Code sec 82012. This requires
18 respondents to first argue that the ban on public campaign financing is part and parcel of the Political 19 Reform Act, but at the same time contrary to the purposes of the Political Reform Act.<sup>3</sup> Both
20 propositions cannot be true. Respondents rely on a legislative finding that the ban on public financing
21

22
23 <sup>3</sup> Contrary to respondents’ suggestion, the California Supreme Court never ruled that the ban on public
24 financing of political campaigns is contrary to the purposes of Political Reform Act as amended by 25 Proposition 73. In Johnson v. Bradley (1992) 4 Cal. 4th 389, the court ruled that the conduct of 26 municipal elections in a charter city was a municipal, rather than statewide, concern. Id. at 402. The 27 court ruled that the ban on public financing of political campaigns for elective office was not narrowly tailored to limit incursion on the municipal affairs of a charter city. Conservation of local, municipal funds is a municipal concern. Id. at 407. The court was not asked to rule, and did not rule, on whether Proposition 73 could possibly be contrary to the Political Reform Act as amended by Proposition 73.
As demonstrated below, Proposition 73 added a purpose to the Title 9 of the Government Code to ban taxpayer financing of campaigns for elective office.

1 of political campaigns gives powers to special interest and “unfairly favors incumbents.”<sup>4</sup> Chapter 837
2 of the Statutes of 2016, § 1(m). Whatever the merits of the political science behind this “finding” may
3 be, it cannot serve as a finding regarding the purposes of Propositions 9, 73, or 34. The Legislature
4 has no power to define the “purposes” of an initiative statute and those findings are not entitled to any
5 deference by the courts. If the question is the purposes of all of Title 9 of the Government Code (as it
6 must be under section 82012), then those purposes must include later amendments, such as Proposition
7 73 and Proposition 34. The court is not limited to the “purposes” of Proposition 9 of 1974. Instead,
8 the purposes of Title 9 must include the 1988 and 2000 initiative measures adding, repealing, and 9 amending portions of Title 9. Both Proposition 73 and 34 evince a clear intent on the part of the voters
10 to prohibit public financing of political campaigns.

11 A. The Legislature is not entitled to deference on the purposes of Title 9 as 12 amended.

13 The purpose of section 10 of Article II of the Constitution is to prohibit the Legislature from 14 “undoing what the people have done without the electorate’s consent.” People v. Kelly, 47 Cal. 4th at 15 1025. When the powers of initiative and referendum were adopted in 1911, the people consciously
16 chose to impose the strictest possible restrictions on legislative amendment of initiatives. Id. at 1035.
17 To preserve the people’s power, legislative amendment of initiative statutes was forbidden. Id.

18 Courts are tasked with the duty to “jealously guard” the initiative power of the people. DeVita
19 v. County of Napa (1995) 9 Cal.4th 763, 776; Brosnahan v. Brown (1982) 32 Cal. 3d 236, 261–62;
20 Associated Home Builders etc., Inc. v. City of Livermore (1976) 18 Cal. 3d 582, 591. The power of 21 initiative includes the power to restrict the Legislature’s the authority to amend the initiative statute
22 without the consent of the voters. Thus, the court must give a liberal interpretation to the people’s
23 power, even when that interpretation is contrary to legislative desire. See People v. Kelly, 47 Cal. 4th
24
25

26 _____
27 <sup>4</sup> Ironically, the legislators that voted for this measure and the governor that signed it are all 28 incumbents.

1 at 1025. As the Supreme Court has noted, “the voters should get what they enacted, not more and not
2 less.” Hodges v. Superior Court (1999) 21 Cal. 4th 109, 114.

3 Assuming the Legislature has any power to reverse the ban on public funding of political 4 campaigns, that change must “further the purposes” of Title 9 of the Government Code. The ban on 5 public funding of political campaigns was placed in Title 9 of the Government Code by Proposition
6 73. Thus, the question for the Court (if it determines that the Legislature even has power to amend
7 the provisions of Proposition 73), is whether repealing a ban on public funding in Title 9 is consistent
8 with the ban on public funding in Title 9. The Legislature proposes to solve this logical dilemma with 9 a “finding” that the ban on public funding is contrary to the purposes of Title 9, which includes the 10 ban on public funding. This “finding” is not binding on the Court and is contrary to common sense.

11 Amwest Surety Insurance Company v. Wilson (1995) 11 Cal. 4th 1243 is instructive on the 12 deference owed to legislative findings and interpretation of the “purposes” of an initiative statute. As 13 is the case here, the Attorney General and Governor urged the court to extend a deferential standard
14 of review to the Legislature’s findings. Id. at 1251 and n.8. This deference was required, according 15 to the argument, by the strong presumption that legislative acts are constitutional. The Court rejected
16 that argument. The California Constitution grants voters the absolute power to control the 17 Legislature’s power to amend initiative statutes. California Common Cause v. Fair Pol. Pract. Com’n
18 (1990) 221 Cal. App. 3d 647, 651–52. This limitation on the Legislature’s power “must be given the 19 effect the voters intended it to have.” Amwest, 11 Cal. 4th at 1255-56. The Court noted that if it
20 accepted the Attorney General’s and Amwest’s argument of deference, it would lead to “the absence 21 of effective judicial review” and lead future initiative drafters to exclude the power of legislative 22 amendment in all cases. Id. at 1256.

23 Although acts of the Legislature carry a presumption of constitutionality, the courts must 24 protect the people’s right of initiative – and this includes limitations on the Legislature’s power to 25 amend initiative statutes. If a legislative amendment “may conflict with the subject matter of initiate 26 measures,” that amendment may only be accomplished by submitting it to the voters for approval.

1 DeVita v. County of Napa, 9 Cal. 4th at 792; Proposition 103 Enforcement Project v. Charles
2 Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1486.

3 The Legislature’s “finding” that the repeal of the ban on public financing of elections is in
4 accord with the purposes of Title 9 of the Government Code, including Title 9’s ban on public
5 financing, is entitled to no deference. As noted below, the Legislature’s claim regarding the purposes
6 of Title 9 ignores later amendments to that law, including Proposition 73 (the statutory initiative that
7 enacted the ban on public financing of political campaigns) and Proposition 34, the statutory initiative
8 put forward by the Legislature that confirmed in its Title and arguments the ban enacted by Proposition 9 73.

10 B. The prohibition on public financing of political campaigns is one of the purposes
11 of Title 9 of the Government Code.

12 To make the argument that Senate Bill No. 1107 “furthers the purposes” of Title 9, respondents
13 are forced to argue for a limited view of what are included in the purposes of Title 9. As they did in 14 Amwest, the Attorney General and Governor argue that the purposes of an initiative statute are only
15 those items found in the section of the initiative setting forth a list of purposes. Amwest, 11 Cal. 4th
16 at 1256. The Supreme Court flatly rejected this argument. Instead, the Court ruled that “evidence of 17 its purpose may be drawn from many sources, including the historical context of the amendment, and 18 the ballot arguments favoring the measure.” Id. Respondents never address the ballot arguments put 19 forward in support of Proposition 73 or Proposition 34.

20 Respondents argument appears to be that Proposition 73 had no “purposes” since it did not 21 include a section with a statement of purposes. The ballot materials accompanying Proposition 73 and 22 Proposition 34 put to rest the notion that the measure had no “purpose.” Center for Public Interest
23 Law v. Fair Pol. Pract. Comm’n (1989) 210 Cal. App. 3d 1476, 1485-86 (Discerning the purpose of 24 Proposition 73 to prohibit public financing of political campaigns by reviewing ballot pamphlet 25 materials).

26 Statutes, including statutes enacted by initiative, must be construed to implement “the intent
27 of the adopting body.” Leshner, 52 Cal. 3d at 543. If there is ambiguity in the meaning of the measure,

28 Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association v. Brown, No 34-20160800002512; Petitioners’ Reply

1 the court can review the ballot arguments and Legislative Analyst’s opinion in the official ballot
2 pamphlet. People v. Johnson (2015) 61 Cal. 4th 674, 687; Robert L. v. Superior Court (2003) 30 Cal.
3 4th 894, 906; San Francisco Taxpayers Assn. v. Bd. of Supervisors (1992); 2 Cal. 4th 571, 579; Eu,
4 54 Cal. 3d at 505.

5 In this case, there is no ambiguity in the language of Proposition 73 that one of the purposes it
6 added to Title 9 of the Government Code was to prohibit public financing of political campaigns for 7 elective office. The language of Government Code § 85300 is clear. Politicians are forbidden to 8 accept and government entities are forbidden to offer public financing for political campaigns.

9 The ballot pamphlet materials confirm the clarity of this purpose. Proposition 73 was entitled
10 “Campaign Funding. Contribution Limits. Prohibition of Public Funding. Initiative Statute.” The title
11 of the measure established the prohibition of public funding for political campaigns as a central 12 purpose of the initiative. See Center for Public Interest Law, 210 Cal. App. 3d at 1485-86. The 13 Legislative Analyst explained that the initiative would prohibit the use of public funds for political 14 campaigns. This included a prohibition on using public funds for newsletters and mass mailings.

15 The argument in favor of Proposition 73 emphasized “TAXPAYER FINANCING OF 16 POLITICAL CAMPAIGNS MAKES NO SENSE! ... Your tax money would be given to candidates you
17 disagree with.” The argument in opposition was just as emphatic “What they do not tell you is that 18 U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that we can’t limit campaign spending without providing some form of 19 public funding. And we can’t have effective campaign reform without limiting spending.” The closing 20 argument in favor of Proposition 73 removes any doubt about its purpose. “WHY ALLOW THESE
21 SPECIAL INTERESTS TO MULTIPLY THEIR POLITICAL INFLUENCE WITH YOUR TAX
22 MONEY? TAXPAYERS SHOULD NOT BE FORCED TO SHELL OUT UP TO $70 MILLION EVERY
23 TWO YEARS FOR THEIR EXTRAVAGANT PLAN. Join nearly 600,000 of your fellow Californians
24 who placed Proposition 73 on the ballot. Support true campaign finance reform WITHOUT RAIDING
25 THE STATE TREASURY.”

26 Proposition 34, the measure put on the ballot by the Legislature, confirms these purposes.
27 Although the measure had no operative provisions to add to the general ban of section 85300, the

1 arguments in favor of Proposition 34 emphasized that the ban on public funding of political campaigns
2 would remain in place. The argument in favor of the measure noted “PROPOSIIION 34 DOES NOT
3 ALLOW TAXPAYER FUNDED CAMPAIGNS. Proposition 34 does not impose [sic] taxpayer
4 dollars to be used to finance political campaigns in California. Our tax money is better spent on 5 schools, roads and public safety.” The argument concluded “VOTE YES ON PROPOSITION 34 if 6 you don’t want taxpayers to pay for political campaigns.” The continued ban on public financing of 7 political campaigns was even included in the title of the measure. “This chapter shall be known as the 8 ‘Campaign Contribution and Voluntary Expenditure Limits Without Taxpayer Financing
9 Amendments to the Political Reform Act of 1974.’” Gov’t Code § 85100 (emphasis added). This 10 echoes the title to the chapter originally enacted by Proposition 73: “This chapter shall be known and 11 cited as the ‘Campaign Contribution Limits Without Taxpayer Financing Amendments to the Political 12 Reform Act.” Proposition 73, § 1 (adding section 85100) (emphasis added).

13 The purpose of adding section 85300 to Title 9 of the Government Code could not be clearer.
14 In title, analysis, and argument, it clearly amended Title 9 to add a ban on taxpayer financing of 15 political campaigns for elective office as a purpose of that law. Whatever other campaign reform
16 measures might be included in Title 9, one important measure insisted on by the voters was a ban on 17 public financing of political campaigns. Even if effective campaign reform required public financing, 18 voters decided they would rather have the prohibition on public funding of political campaigns than 19 amici’s vision of effective reform. See Taxpayers to Limit Campaign Spending v. Fair Pol. Practices
20 Com. (1990) 51 Cal.3d 744, 751, 754. Proposition 34 reinforced this purpose even while it repealed
21 the authority for the Legislature to amend section 85300.

22 C. Legislation that conflicts with Government Code § 85300, a voter-enacted statute,
23 cannot further the purpose of Title 9, which includes section 85300.

24 As noted above, California courts have rejected the notion that they are limited to a “purposes”
25 section of an initiative in determining whether a legislative amendment furthers the purposes of the 26 voter-enacted measure. The purpose of Title 9, as amended, clearly includes the ban on taxpayer
27 financing of political campaigns. But even when it is not clear from the stated purposes, courts have

1 held that a measure does not advance the purposes if it conflicts with a voter-enacted section of the 2 law. Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Ass’n v. Bowen (2011) 192 Cal.App.4th 110, 116; Gardner v.
3 Schwarzenegger (2009) 178 Cal. App. 1366, 1374. It does not matter if the Legislature argues that it
4 is “advancing the purposes” of a voter-enacted statute. If the legislative amendment conflicts with the 5 voter-enacted statute, the amendment cannot be said to advance the purposes of the initiative. Indeed,
6 the courts rejected several attempts of the Legislature to amend Proposition 103, notwithstanding
7 legislative declarations that the amendments “furthered the purposes” of the initiative. See Amwest,
8 11 Cal. 4th at 1265; DeVita v. County of Napa, 9 Cal. 4th at 792; Foundation for Taxpayer and 9 Consumer Rights v. Garamendi (2005) 132 Cal. App. 4th 1354, 1366; Proposition 103 Enforcement
10 Project v. Quackenbush (1998) 64 Cal. App. 4th 1473, 1494.

11 “Purposes” are often stated in general terms, inviting the Legislature to argue that its 12 amendment somehow “further” those general “purposes.” The duty of the courts, however, is to 13 protect the people’s right of initiative. DeVita v. County of Napa, 9 Cal. 4th at 776. This includes the 14 people’s “absolute” right to restrict the power of the Legislature to make changes to voter-enacted
15 statutes. California Common Cause v. Fair Pol. Pract. Comm’n, 221 Cal. App. 3d at 651–52.

16 The decision in Foundation for Taxpayer and Consumer Rights is instructive in this regard.
17 The court in that case considered a legislative amendment to Proposition 103, a voter-enacted
18 insurance reform measure. In the amendment, the Legislature authorized insurers to give discounts
19 based on “persistence” – the insured’s maintenance of prior insurance. The petitioners in Foundation,
20 argued that using “persistence” as a rating factor did not advance the purposes of Proposition 103. As 21 in this case, the Attorney General argued that nothing in Proposition 103’s “statement of purposes”
22 section spoke to the issue of “persistence” as a rating factor. The Legislature made a finding that the 23 amendment would increase competition, and this, it was argued, was a purpose of Proposition 103.
24 The “purposes” section of Proposition 103 provided only that the measure was intended “to protect
25 consumers from arbitrary insurance rates and practices, to encourage a competitive insurance
26 marketplace, to provide for an accountable Insurance Commissioner, and to ensure that insurance is 27 fair, available, and affordable for all Californians.” Amwest, 11 Cal. 4th at 1256 n.9. The petitioners

1 argued that the legislative amendment conflicted with a purpose of prohibiting discrimination against
2 drivers who did not have prior insurance. The state argued that prohibition of discrimination is not
3 mentioned in the purposes section and the amendment was within the Legislature’s power.

4 The court in Foundation rejected the state’s argument. The purpose of a voter-enacted measure
5 is found in its operative provisions. Foundation, 132 Cal. App. 4th at 1369-70. A legislative 6 amendment must not only further the “purposes in general” of an initiative measure – it also cannot 7 violate “a specific primary mandate.” Id. That is, the legislative amendment may not conflict with 8 the express terms of the voter-enacted statute.

9 As noted above, Proposition 73 amended the Political Reform Act to include a ban on taxpayer
10 financing of political campaigns. In furtherance of this purpose, Proposition 73 added Government
11 Code Section 85300. That section, as enacted by Proposition 73, prohibits candidates from accepting 12 public monies for political campaigns. It further prohibits any public officer from expending public
13 monies for political campaigns for elective office. Subsequent voter-enacted measures, Proposition
14 208 and Proposition 34, carefully left section 85300 in place even as they repealed other provisions of 15 Proposition 73. Indeed, Proposition 34 proclaimed that it achieved campaign finance reform “without 16 taxpayer financing.”

17 Senate Bill No. 1107 (Chapter 837 of the Statutes of 2016) reverses this “specific primary 18 mandate” of Proposition 73. By converting the ban on public financing of political campaigns for 19 elective office into and express authorization for public financing, Senate Bill No. 1107 conflicts with 20 the operative provisions of a voter-enacted statute. By definition, Senate Bill No. 1107 cannot advance
21 the purposes of Title 9 of the Government Code as amended by Proposition 73.

22 D. Respondents’ claim that public financing of election campaigns will promote 23 better, more responsive, elected officials is both irrelevant and inaccurate.

24 The merits of respondents’ and amici’s extended political science argument public financing 25 of campaigns is irrelevant to the issues before this Court. The issue (assuming legislative authority to 26 amend the provisions of Proposition 73) is not whether the Legislature’s reversal of the ban on public
27 financing of political campaigns is a good idea, it is only whether it promoted the purposes of Title 9

1 as a whole – as it was amended by Propositions 73 and 34. Amwest, 11 Cal. 4th at 1256; Gardner,
2 178 Cal. App. 4th at 1378.

3 Respondents argue that Senate Bill No. 1107 furthers the purposes of the Act, pointing to 4 various academic studies and policy arguments. For the reasons already given, these efforts are 5 insufficient as a matter of law. They fail to take into account the purposes added to Title 9 by the 6 voters when they adopted Propositions 73 and 34. But respondents’ arguments are also incomplete
7 and misleading as a matter of fact. The various authorities cited by respondents and their amici—
8 many of which are a decade old and do not account for more recent developments—do not support
9 the Attorney General’s claim that public financing serves the 1974 Act’s anti-incumbency purpose.

10 To the contrary, the legislation challenged here will neither diminish incumbency nor increase
11 competition. Academic and policy research is consistent on this question. In the most comprehensive 12 study to date, the Federal Government Accountability Office, which in 2003 found that public
13 financing had a minimal impact on competitiveness,<sup>5</sup> has subsequently concluded that public financing 14 produced “no statistically significant differences observed for the other measures of electoral 15 competition: contestedness<sup>6</sup> and incumbent reelection rates.”<sup>7</sup> Similarly, Kenneth Mayer, who 16 originally published research that was supportive of public funding’s possible positive impacts, has 17 admitted in more recent work that “despite unexpectedly high participation in [public funding], there
18 was no difference in electoral competition in incumbent-challenger matchups.”<sup>8</sup> Research also 19 indicates that “the longer term pattern has shown no significant change in incumbency reelection rates, 20

21 _____
22 <sup>5</sup> Center for Governmental Studies, 2003. Investing in Democracy: Creating Public Financing of 23 Elections in Your Community, at page 15. (July 13, 2017) available at <http://www.policyarchive.org/handle/10207/231>.

24 <sup>6</sup> Contestedness is defined as the number of candidates per race.

25 <sup>7</sup> Government Accountability Office. Campaign Finance Reform: Experiences of Two States That 26 Offered Full Public Funding for Political Candidates. (July 12, 2017), accessible at, <http://www.gao.gov/assets/310/305079.pdf>.

27 <sup>8</sup> Amnon Cavari, & Kenneth R. Mayer. Why Didn’t Public Funding Generate More Competition in State Legislative Elections? (April 18, 2011), in American Politics Workshop, University of 28 Wisconsin. April, 2011.

1 margins of victory, or legislature demographics.”<sup>9</sup> Another recent report states that “our results
2 indicate that, despite claims that this policy increases electoral competition, taxpayer financing of 3 political campaigns does not produce statistically significantly lower re-election rates for incumbent
4 state legislators.”<sup>10</sup> Finally, though some studies have found increases in participation rates under 5 public financing, and increases in contested primaries, it must be noted that “simply because an 6 election is contested does not necessarily mean that the race is competitive.”<sup>11</sup>

7 Equally telling, the 2015 Campaign Finance Institute study cited by the Attorney General itself
8 acknowledged that public funding does not “reduce the unfair advantages of incumbency and the 9 influence of large contributions,”<sup>12</sup> concluding that “[i]t is obvious – certainly in the new world of 10 independent spending – that citizen funding programs do not and cannot squeeze private money out
11 of politics,” and that public money does not help competition when defined as “the margins of victory
12 in competitive races, or the defeat of incumbents.”<sup>13</sup> The National Institute for Money in Politics study
13 cited by the Attorney General, begins by stating that public financing influences the competitiveness
14 of races but goes on to find that there is not necessarily a clear link. The report further noted that 15 public financing in several states may have shown no, or even inverse responses.<sup>14</sup> And in a more
16 recent study, completed in 2017, the Institute found that candidates who opt for public funding in some

---

17
18
19 <sup>9</sup> Kenneth R. Mayer. Public Election Funding: An Assessment of What We Would Like to Know. Vol
20 11. No. 3 The Forum: A Journal of Applied Research in Contemporary Politics. 365, 366 (October, 21 2013).

22 <sup>10</sup> Joe Albanese, Do Taxpayer-Funded Campaigns Increase Political Competitiveness? CENTER
23 FOR COMPETITIVE POLITICS, June 2017. (July 12, 2017) available at
24 http://www.campaignfreedom.org/wp-content/uploads/2017/06/2017-06-05\_Issue-Analysis-10\_Do-
25 Taxpayer-Funded-Campaigns-Increase-Political-Competitiveness.pdf.

26 <sup>11</sup> Neil Malhotra. The Impact of Public Financing on Electoral Competition. Vol. 8, No.3 State Politics
27 and Policy Quarterly 263, 269 (Fall, 2008).

28 <sup>12</sup> Campaign Finance Institute. Citizen Funding for Elections. (July 10, 2017) available at http://www.cfinst.org/press/PReleases/15-11-19/CFI\_Report\_Citizen\_Funding\_for\_Elections.aspx.

<sup>13</sup> Id.

<sup>14</sup> National Institute on Money in State Politics, 2013 and 2014: Monetary Competitiveness in State Legislative Races. (July 13, 2017) available at https://www.followthemoney.org/research/institute- reports/2013-and-2014-monetary-competitiveness-in-state-legislative-races/.

1 states are increasingly more likely to lose.<sup>15</sup> While one study of public funding cited by the Attorney
2 General showed positive effects on competitiveness in a single election cycle,<sup>16</sup> that study was forced
3 to concede that public funding for challengers did “not necessarily increase their chance of winning.”<sup>17</sup>
4 That study is nine years old. In subsequent research with a larger sample of states and elections, the 5 “lack of effect [from public financing] was striking, and forces a reconsideration of the early
6 conclusions which found that public funding programs increase competition.”<sup>18</sup> It is true that 7 politicians do not have to work as hard to compile campaign contributions when public funding is 8 available, but studies also show that incumbents are more likely than challengers to raise and use
9 public funding effectively.<sup>19</sup>

10 Policy arguments cannot rescue the Legislature from its decision to pass amendments that 11 clearly violate the electorate’s decree. But the Attorney General’s arguments fail on their own merits, 12 especially as the state has relied upon outdated research and failed to cite later work—sometimes by 13 the same authors—refuting those early, tentative conclusions.

---

23 <sup>15</sup> J.T. Stepleton. The Rise and Fall of Public Funding in Arizona. The National Institute on Money
24 in State Politics. (July 10, 2017) available at <https://www.followthemoney.org/research/blog/the-rise-and-fall-of-public-funding-in-arizona/>.

25 <sup>16</sup> Based on findings of the Maine and Arizona election cycles of 2000.

26 <sup>17</sup> Malhotra, supra footnote 11.

27 <sup>18</sup> Cavari & Mayer, supra footnote 8.

28 <sup>19</sup> Campaign Finance Institute, supra footnote 12.

1
2
3
4
5
6
7
8
9
10
11
12
13
14
15
16
17
18
19
20
21
22
23
24
25
26
27
28

CONCLUSION

The Legislature has no authority to amend section 85300. In any event, a statute that authorizes that which the voters prohibited cannot be said to advance the purpose of the law that the voters enacted. Senate Bill No. 1107 is void and the motion for issuance of the peremptory writ should be granted.

DATED: July 19, 2017.

JOHN C. EASTMAN
ANTHONY T. CASO

CHARLES H. BELL, JR
BELL, McANDREWS & HILTACHK, LLP

ALLEN DICKERSON

---

By ANTHONY T. CASO
Attorneys for Petitioners and Plaintiffs

1 DECLARATION OF SERVICE

2 I, Anthony T. Caso, declare as follows:

3 I am a resident of the State of California, over the age of 18 years and not a party to the within
4 action. My business address is Center for Constitutional Jurisprudence, c/o Chapman University,
5 Fowler School of Law, 1 University Drive, Orange, California, 92866.

6 The parties have agreed to electronic service of documents in this matter.

7 On, July 19, 2017 true copies of PETITIONER’S REPLY MEMORANDUM OF POINTS
8 AND AUTHORITIES IN SUPPORT OF MOTION FOR ISSUANCE OF PEREMPTORY
9 WRIT OF MANDATE were sent via email (pursuant to the parties’ agreement for electronic service)

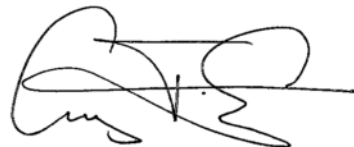

10 to:

11 Emmanuelle S. Soichet
12 Deputy Attorney General
13 Emmanuelle.Soichet@doj.ca.gov
14 janet.wong@doj.ca.gov

15 Bradley S. Phillips
16 Munger, Tolles & Olson LLP
17 Brad.Phillips@mto.com
18 Mary.Pantoja@mto.com

19 Megan P. McAllen
20 Campaign Legal Center
21 mmcallen@campaignlegalcenter.org

22 I declare under penalty of perjury that the foregoing is true and correct and that this declaration
23 was executed this 19th day of July, 2017, at Orange, California.

24

25 _____
26 By ANTHONY T. CASO